4. ADD RING of yummy goo (either vitamin paste or cat toothpaste)

5. Slowly press down syringe to feed her drugs while she's distracted licking off the goo

(you can wash either before or after. just so long as bacteria doesn't get into her medicine bottle)

4. NUCLEAR WARFARE

LITTER BOX

DAILY: Scoop the poop & yellow used sand into a trash bag and throw in the outside dumpster.

this thing doesn't work well

the soup ladle works great

it needs to be deep or she rises floor

Don't flush down toilet. Add clean cat sand to replace scooped sand.

every few weeks, or when it gets stinky:

Change entirely. Use the fancy bags with elastic straps & instructions, but then add more cat sand. The fancy bags don't have enough.

5. EMERGENCY info

VET = Philipp T. AMON @ STADTPLTZ

emergency # 0676/415 3890

[see "TACOCAT" section 9]

"NORMAL" things VELCRO DOES that are not emergencies:

- Sniffling (a LOT)
- Sneezing
- Making Gollum noises
- Drooling
- Running into walls
- Losing her balance
- HEAVY BREATHING
- Limping slightly
- SCRATCHING her ears (unless there's bleeding - then it's time for vet)
- "CRYING" from right eye

if she has a SEIZURE: (falls over, loses control of muscles, starts twitching or spasming, pupils dilate, heart races) Wait patiently with her, stroking her gently to calm her. If she fell in a bad place, gently move her to couch.

* Wait 15 minutes. If she can walk: ALL GOOD. TRY To give her water with wet food. CAN'T WALK after 15 min: CALL VET. *15 MIN AFTER SPASMS END, NOT 15 MIN AFTER BEGINNING.

6. MORE NUCLEAR WARFARE (WHAT TO DO if SHE PUKES)

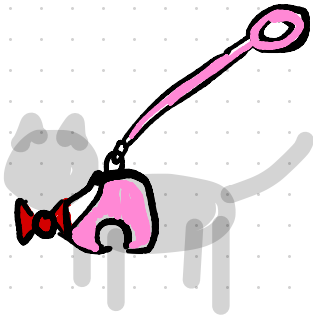
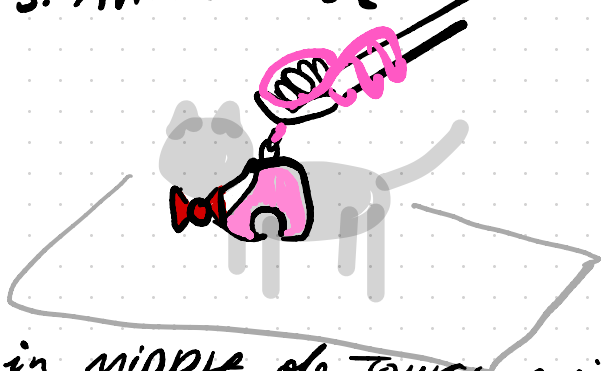
9. TACOCAT [The Rube Goldberg Cat Burrito Method 4 emergencies]

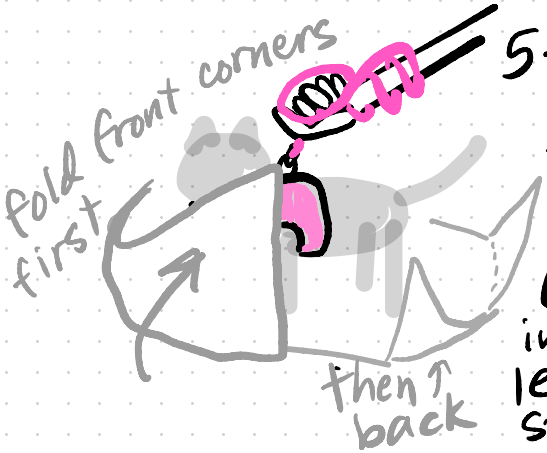
1. feed cat CALMING PASTE. Wait 10-15 min.
2. Put harness on cat, first the bowtie, then the buckles. Shouldn't be too hard — she doesn't mind it.



3. Attach leash to harness.



4. PLACE CAT in MIDDLE of TOWEL, using leash to keep her there. You can lift her slightly if needed, her harness distributes strain so it's not all on her neck.



5. with other hand, fold in corners of towel to leash attachment ring on harness
6. STUFF cat burrito in backpack, remove leash so she doesn't strangle herself, & close lid. ■
